

The future materials are of two kinds: 1. Objects that have yet to be recognized as such; 2. A subjectivity that is not subject to the illusion of a self.

We speculate through refusing so-called intelligence, especially when the latter is pinned to the plane of matter. At stake in speculation is the production of something that is not in the image of the what already is.